The Book ...

From Literature Review to Developing a Conceptual Framework and to Journal Writing provides information and advice on writing literature reviews as well as writing research papers for publication in academic journals. The book presents effective strategies for conducting searches, organising information, constructing a conceptual or theoretical framework and writing the final textual presentation through an easy-to-follow question and answer approach. Realistic examples are drawn from the authors’ own experiences to demonstrate how to put theory into practice. Important information is tabulated for extra clarity and useful websites are highlighted throughout the book for readers’ benefit.

Who would benefit from the book ...

The book is an essential guide for all students and researchers who are pursuing their basic or postgraduate degrees in the field of education and social sciences. It is also highly recommended for those seeking a practical yet simple step-by-step guide on how to prepare a successful study and how to present research findings in ways that would be fulfilling and rewarding professionally.
